WILL REVEALS PHILOSOPHY ONE MAN LIVED BY

"If There Is Nothing After Me There's Nothing for Anybody," Wrote Guttin.

When Jean Baptiste Guttin died the world lost a philosopher. Jean kept a little table d'hôte restaurant in West Twenty-fifth Street. His brand of philosophy appears at length in his will, filed to-day in the Surrogate's Court. "Thanks to my father," says the last clause of the testament, "who preached to me by his good example, and thanks be to Camille Flammarion, who by his writings, saved me from despair by demonstrating the grandeur of the infinite.

"If spirits there are, if I am not persuaded that I am one, I am all the same persuaded that my kind is that of all the world. If there is nothing after me, it is that there is nothing for anybody.

"Pardon this flight and the bother that my demise causes you. I would wish that after certitude of my death, to be active in getting rid of my body by cremation, to abandon my ashes like those of anybody else, to think of me afterward only to forgive me.

"Au revoir and adieu to everybody and all!"

Jean's text may have suffered a little at the hands of his translator, for the will was drawn in French and filed with an English copy. It disposes of an estate worth more than $10,000, accumulated in many years of hard work, to his wife, son and daughter, to friends and to charity.

"To Camille Guttin, my daughter," the will says, "who had so much to suffer from the opposing characters of her father, her mother and her brother, to protect her and that she may protect herself during the continuance of her failed existence, I bequeath three-quarters of all my possessions.

"To my wife and her son, whom she made hers by turning him against me—to these two the fourth quarter left of the whole after deducting all other bequests."

The widow and her son live at No. 117 Waverly place.

MERCHANTS SEEK LOW LIGHT RATES; ASK FOR REVISION

Petition Public Service Commission to Revise Edison Charges.

The Merchants' Association to-day asked the Public Service Commission for an order revising the entire schedule of rates and charges of the New York Edison Company. It bases its request upon "a comprehensive investigation of the affairs, earnings and methods of the company and upon a valuation of its property."

To-day's action marks a new chapter in a three-year agitation for lower electric light rates in the five boroughs. A short time ago Frederick B. De Bernard, representing the merchants, argued that the Edison Company was charging too much for light to large consumers, but that it would be inadvisable to reduce the rate to small consumers, as was sought in the proceedings. Bernard was ruled out of order.

The new petition is signed by S. C. Mead, Secretary, and the Committee on Public Utilities, composed of E. H. Outerbridge, Chairman; Edward C. Blum, John C. Eames, F. A. Molter, Clarence Whitman, Henry R. Towne and Julius Henry Cohen of counsel.

The allegations in the petition are as follows:

"That the profits of the New York Edison Company from the selling of electric current are excessive and unreasonable; that the excess of profit is due to the growth of the company's business in supplying current for power and light in large units and under conditions of maximum economy, despite the fact that service of that kind is supplied at a relatively low rate and that very little profit is derived from the class of small users.

"That the rates exacted from any class of consumers should be fairly proportioned to the cost of supplying service to such class; that before any equitable rate can be determined it is necessary that all the elements of cost be fully developed and properly located with reference to each class to which service is supplied; that the value of the property employed and the extent of the fixed and carrying charges properly applicable thereto are essential factors, without a knowledge of which it is impossible, accurately or even approximately, to determine the costs of any particular class of service, and that in arriving at the capital charges which make up part of the cost of such service it is likewise essential that the value of a business as a going concern should be determined."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey Is A Valuable Remedy For Many Ills

There is nothing more gratifying than the association with strong vigorous men and women who enjoy perfect health. Health is in great part due to correct living. Think back a generation and recall the healthy, strong and happy old people of your youth; they lived right. The business and social pace was not so rapid then—they took time to eat properly—they had better stomachs. There is no more important bodily organ than the stomach. Give the stomach perfect action and the foundation of perfect health is laid. Neglected stomach disorders lead to nervous and anaemic conditions that often develop into heart complaints and permit of bad colds and even serious bronchial and lung troubles. Great numbers of people who have suffered in one way or another from the effects of disordered stomachs have learned that through the judicious use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey a better health is obtained—a renewed and happier interest in life is possible.

Made Her Strong and Well

Stomach Troubles Relieved
"I want to express my thanks for the good Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done me. My attending physician told me I could not live three months and said I had consumption of the stomach. I read your advertisement in the newspaper, bought a bottle, took it, and it has done me so much good I cannot praise Duffy's enough."—Mrs. Chas. A. Warner, Cambridgeport, Vt.

"Two years ago after a severe illness of stomach trouble, I was left in such a weakened condition that my doctors thought I would not live through the winter. Before taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey none of the medicines the doctor gave me seemed to help me, and I suffered untold agony. As a last resort, the doctor, who was a strong temperance advocate, said he would try getting me to take Duffy's; and I cannot express how thankful I am that he did, for it is the thing that saved my life."—Mrs. W. F. Wallace, 3626 N. Camac St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Called Duffy's "Elixir of Life"

"I am seventy-two years old and in perfect health. When I was forty-seven the doctors thought I would die of consumption. I fooled them all—I started to take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and soon grew strong and vigorous. I am able to do hard work every day and can climb six flights of stairs without fatigue. In my opinion there is nothing in the world so good to put vim, vigor and vitality into any run-down person as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I call it the 'elixir of life.'"—Mr. H. Stoerzbach, 196 East 76th St., New York City.

Cannot Praise Duffy's Enough

"I had a very bad attack of dysentery that lasted two months. My doctor gave me medicines and powders, but I grew weaker and weaker. I saw an ad of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey saying it was good for weak bowels—I at once bought a bottle and before it was half used felt it was doing me good. I finished the bottle and was myself again. I cannot praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey enough for it was my life saver."—Mrs. H. Cooper, 2340 Putnam Ave., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.
